There are many factors that affect a cleaning and repair project. They include fabric type, current condition, how it will be used and stored. Typical process includes soaking, washing, pressing and mending. PLEASE NOTE- I am not a professional conservator. I have been a vintage and antique linens dealer for many years with bricks and mortar stores and selling online since 2003. I have over 50 years sewing experience- I am a serious sewist and love my work! My process is designed to restore everyday items to their best possible condition. Museum quality items should be consigned to professional conservators. I also manufacture Archival Quality Storage Solutions for quilts, linens and baby gowns in a home studio setting. All shipping is done through the USPS at your expense.
